

Fellside Music

A Suite For Brass Band

Alan Fernie

Fellside Music was composed in 2010 and is a portrait of the contentment one feels when living in a small town in Northern Britain: a place surrounded by hills and fells, where good people live and work in harmony, children play and perhaps the local Brass Band marches past your door! Occasionally quoting music by Gustav Holst and George Butterworth, the piece hopes to evoke the spirit of a community, where life is both «as it was and as it should be».
